TEACHING ACTIVITIES

(2007-) Professor of Philosophy – Research Chair in Philosophy of Information, University of Hertfordshire

I teach one, 12-hours course, Logic and Language, and a related seminar.

(2002-7) Associate Professor of Logic & Epistemology, Università degli Studi di Bari

In Bari I taught courses in logic, epistemology and philosophy of logic/language.

(1992-2002) Lecturer in Philosophy, University of Oxford

During this decade, I was, at different times, stipendiary lecturer (with full responsibilities for admission, pastoral care and teaching organization) at Jesus, Keble, Magdalen, St Anne's, St Bennett's and Wadham College.

As a lecturer and tutor, I taught several papers from the Oxford Syllabus (in alphabetic order): Aristotle: Nicomachean Ethics; Continental Philosophy from Descartes to Leibniz; Descartes: Meditations; Ethics; Frege, Russell and Wittgenstein; History of Philosophy from Descartes to Kant; Introduction to Mathematical Logic (Hodges); Knowledge and Reality; Leibniz-Clarke Correspondence; Mill: Utilitarianism; Plato: Republic; Russell: Introduction to Mathematical Philosophy; Sextus Empiricus: Outlines of Pyrrhonism; The Elements of Deductive Logic; The Later Philosophy of Wittgenstein; The Philosophy of Logic and Language; The Philosophy of Mind.

I also served as: Examiner for Preliminary Examination in Psychology, Philosophy and Physiology (1998-2000, Chairman 1999-2000); and Assessor for Honour Moderations in Classics (1998-2002).

When I was in Oxford, the teaching web site that I had organised won the First Class Award given by The Philosophers' Magazine to outstanding educational sites.

(1990-1991) Lecturer in Philosophy, University of Warwick

In Warwick I lectured in: Epistemology and Metaphysics; History of Modern Philosophy; Introduction to Mathematical Logic; The Philosophy of Logic and Language.
